CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The na-sound platform for agriculture when National Master Louis J.

Taber said "one behind which every group of farmers and Americans could rally to solve the problems of agriculture."The platform drafted by the that it may be raised to equality with other groups.2—Insist that the farm program be administered by farmers, with compensatory payments to tide over the emergency while farm prices are below parity.3—Speed national recovery by taking the shackles off business, by increasing employment and reducing the relief burden.4—Recognize as fundamental the right of the American farmer to the American market up to the limit of his ability to supply it.5—Close the doors to imports of foreign farm products which are injurious to American agriculture, and which help to reduce its purchasing power.6—Keep America out of foreign farm products.11—Maintain the family-sized farm as the standard of American agriculture and discourage large-a means of crop control.13—Promote a better and more satisfactory rural life through development of educational facilities, good roads and rural electrification.14—Foster the American spirit of self-help in solving our problems; encourage cooperation between farmers and farm organizations;urge understanding, cooperation and good will between agriculture, labor and industry for mutual welfare and for the best interests of the nation.

THREE MARKS ON THE WALL

Part of organized labor's job, like that of any enterprise, is maintenance of good public relations. A strike without popular support is not likely to be successful. A policy that excites popular disapproval isn't likely to be workable.

Thoughtful unionists have made no secret of their doubts about some of the things done by organized labor. They have warned that the tendency to take too much for granted under the New Deal may have repercussions, insofar as public opinion is affected adversely.

Organized labor, they have pointed out, is a minority, not only of the electorate, but of labor as a whole. Excesses will call for remedies to cure them. Three bits of evidence are at hand indicating that this has happened.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general of the United States, has warned that anti-trust statutes will be applied against "unreasonable restraints" by labor unions. Elliott Roosevelt has warned organized labor that "the country is out of patience with the surly, picayunish attitude of two great organizations that have split all labor in half and now refuse to do anything about it." The strike against the Chrysler Corp., now more than a month and a half old, has failed to win popular support and has won, instead, popular condemnation equal to, if not greater, than that which turned the public and eventually the government against the notorious sitdown strikes.

The handwriting is on the wall for farsighted unionists to see.

THIS MUST BE IT

Nazi threats of a new weapon, taken none too seriously when Adolf Hitler first uttered them, seem to have materialized. If wholesale destruction of shipping despite elaborate protective measures isn't the result of a new weapon, then the sea-going British haven't heard about all the old ones yet.

There is talk of magnetic and parachute mines. There is talk of counter-measures to make them useless. In the meantime, ships continue to be blown up unexpectedly in unexpected places. It may be doubted that the British know what they're fighting against, let alone how to fight it. On the other hand, it may be assumed they will find out eventually.

Question is, therefore, will they find out soon enough to keep the shipping on which they're vitally dependent from being disorganized by terror. It's an axiom of warfare that no belligerent ever holds an advantage in weapons any longer than is required for its opponent to devise protection. But it wouldn't take many months of naval destruction by Germany at the recent rate to make a momentous difference in the balance of naval power in European waters.

If Germany, with no surface fleet worth mentioning, can sink ships at an admitted rate of 25 a week, Britain's surface fleet might become a liability instead of an asset, in a military sense.

PAY AS YOU GO

Trial balloons to test national sentiment on a pay as you go rule for national defense spending won't tell much. It's the logical way to arrange the matter, but putting expenditures on the cuff has become the easy way. Taxation isn't the hard and fast rule any more.

Most compelling reason for paying for national defense directly, next to its merit as sound fiscal practice, is the sense of responsibility it generates. Five minutes after it became known that the administration would recommend taxes for the extra cost of national defense, the precise meaning of that phrase would begin to come under critical scrutiny.

A peculiar thing about national defense in this country is that it's the only place in the world where a lot of money is spent without the spenders designating an opponent. The British, French, Germans, Japanese, Russians and Italians always are given a rough idea of the purpose of their defense expenditures—and the purpose calls for considerably more than playing safe against some unnamed opponent. They are told what their leaders have in mind. Their fears are not permitted to go nameless, which is where the United States holds a decided advantage. Their fears literally are nameless, causing some to believe they may also be exaggerated.

BROTHER KUHN

Ever since the first stone age when Romeo carved out a love message on a handy rock—and later got smacked with the rock—men have been making the same mistake.

Brother Fritz Kuhn, the bund leader, isn't the kind of a fellow who wins his daily popularity contest in a breeze. He has inspired as much sympathy in the United States as a German police dog on a chain.

But Brother Kuhn unexpectedly has turned out to have a soft side to his character. When he admired a lady he couldn't resist, the impulse to write it down—and as usual it has smacked him down in court.

The charges against Brother Kuhn are grave—no less than theft. But the most serious thing that can be proved against him is that in his weaker moments he is prone to write love letters. That shows lack of foresight, something no bund leader can afford to have known about himself.

A THOUSAND TIMES NO

Those Christmas boxes that will be in great demand from now on are in process of being standardized, says the magazine "Retailing." Instead of being 4,320 different sizes, as at present, they'll be boiled down to less than a hundred.

An average householder who specializes in such matters will drop when he sees this. It doesn't matter how many sizes boxes come in as long as they can be stacked up inside one another when Christmas is over, for use again next Christmas. With only 75 sizes to draw on, Mr. Average Householder and his companion sufferers from efficiency will have double trouble when time comes to cart the boxes up to the attic. There won't be enough room, even if most of them are spilled on the way.

AN EVENTFUL day, with several intriguing developments, is forecast from the dominant lunar aspects. An element of suddenness and surprise arises, with a demand for change of plans, associations and probably objectives and surroundings. Shun impetuosity and strife; also refrain from extravagance or lavish indulgence. There may be peculiar reactions on the private life, secretive and dangerous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden, peculiar and intriguing twists to the affairs. These may be favorable if managed by precaution, vigilance and finesse rather than direct or audacious methods. Compromise rather than quarrels may win out, but beware of extravagance, doubtful cut-and-dried and all manner of pitfalls and schemes. Change seems probable. Suspicious circumstances may have unhappy reactions unless tact and keen judgment are used.

Modern Sprain Treatment Discussed By Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is the modern treatment for sprained ankles?

Sprained ankle occurs as the result of a misstep so that the foot is either turned in or out. Sprained ankle means that no bones are broken but that the ligaments are torn or ruptured.

The first procedure is to make certain that it really is a sprain and that there is no dislocation or fracture. This, of course means an x-ray picture. The old saying that a sprain is worse than a fracture was due to the treatment that used to be employed. This consisted in spraying the ankle in a plaster cast and keeping the foot immobile for a while.

This was the custom when an English orthopedic surgeon discovered that his young patients who disobeyed his instructions and took off the casts and played tennis got well quicker than the more obedient ones.

Modern treatment has, therefore, adopted the suggestion that after strapping with adhesive tape, the patient is urged to get up and about as soon as possible. However, the foot should be kept at rest with the heel application for a day or two until the swelling subsides. The adhesive tape should probably be kept on for support for several weeks. Where economic circumstances permit, massage is advised in connection with exercise.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Dr. Solomon Strouse, an eminent authority on dietetics, makes the very sensible remark, "It is really not necessary for the average human being, living a normal life without illness, to know more than the simple fact that a diet containing milk, fruits, a variety of vegetables, bread and butter, some meat and an egg or two daily will pretty well cover most of the fundamental nutritional requirements for proper living."

THREE MARKS ON THE WALL

Part of organized labor's job, like that of any enterprise, is maintenance of good public relations. A strike without popular support is not likely to be successful. A policy that excites popular disapproval isn't likely to be workable.

Thoughtful unionists have made no secret of their doubts about some of the things done by organized labor. They have warned that the tendency to take too much for granted under the New Deal may have repercussions, insofar as public opinion is affected adversely.

Organized labor, they have pointed out, is a minority, not only of the electorate, but of labor as a whole. Excesses will call for remedies to cure them. Three bits of evidence are at hand indicating that this has happened.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general of the United States, has warned that anti-trust statutes will be applied against "unreasonable restraints" by labor unions. Elliott Roosevelt has warned organized labor that "the country is out of patience with the surly, picayunish attitude of two great organizations that have split all labor in half and now refuse to do anything about it." The strike against the Chrysler Corp., now more than a month and a half old, has failed to win popular support and has won, instead, popular condemnation equal to, if not greater, than that which turned the public and eventually the government against the notorious sitdown strikes.

The handwriting is on the wall for farsighted unionists to see.

THIS MUST BE IT

Nazi threats of a new weapon, taken none too seriously when Adolf Hitler first uttered them, seem to have materialized. If wholesale destruction of shipping despite elaborate protective measures isn't the result of a new weapon, then the sea-going British haven't heard about all the old ones yet.

There is talk of magnetic and parachute mines. There is talk of counter-measures to make them useless. In the meantime, ships continue to be blown up unexpectedly in unexpected places. It may be doubted that the British know what they're fighting against, let alone how to fight it. On the other hand, it may be assumed they will find out eventually.

Question is, therefore, will they find out soon enough to keep the shipping on which they're vitally dependent from being disorganized by terror. It's an axiom of warfare that no belligerent ever holds an advantage in weapons any longer than is required for its opponent to devise protection. But it wouldn't take many months of naval destruction by Germany at the recent rate to make a momentous difference in the balance of naval power in European waters.

If Germany, with no surface fleet worth mentioning, can sink ships at an admitted rate of 25 a week, Britain's surface fleet might become a liability instead of an asset, in a military sense.

PAY AS YOU GO

Trial balloons to test national sentiment on a pay as you go rule for national defense spending won't tell much. It's the logical way to arrange the matter, but putting expenditures on the cuff has become the easy way. Taxation isn't the hard and fast rule any more.

Most compelling reason for paying for national defense directly, next to its merit as sound fiscal practice, is the sense of responsibility it generates. Five minutes after it became known that the administration would recommend taxes for the extra cost of national defense, the precise meaning of that phrase would begin to come under critical scrutiny.

A peculiar thing about national defense in this country is that it's the only place in the world where a lot of money is spent without the spenders designating an opponent. The British, French, Germans, Japanese, Russians and Italians always are given a rough idea of the purpose of their defense expenditures—and the purpose calls for considerably more than playing safe against some un-named opponent. They are told what their leaders have in mind. Their fears are not permitted to go nameless, which is where the United States holds a decided advantage. Its fears literally are nameless, causing some to believe they may also be exaggerated.

Hearings Aids

What are the best hearing aids? The best modern hearing aids are unquestionably the electrical bone conduction amplifier. Its advantages are its unobtrusiveness and compactness, and the fact that it embodies the advantages of bone conduction instead of trying to force sound through the ankylosed ear ossicles. The parts concerned are:

1. The transmitter, which converts sound energy of the speaker's voice into electrical energy.

2. The receiver, which converts electrical energy back into sound energy.

3. The line, which connects the transmitter to the receiver.

4. The batteries, which supply the electrical energy to be regulated or "triggered" by the transmitter.

5. The amplifier, which increases the amount of the type of electric energy which will produce sound, at the expense of electrical energy from a battery. The amplifier is a recent addition to the hearing aid.

Europe's war has shifted to the sky as latest dispatches tell of fierce activities over the Western Front. CHAPTER XX
Looking right black dinner jacket and striped shirt as if he had stepped from the pages of a gentleman's fiction magazine, Slim parked his roadster near the concealed entrance of an elegant apartment house on Sheridan road.

An elevator whisked Slim to the penthouse floor. He was met at the elevator door at the building's top by a neatly uniformed young colored maid who ushered Slim into a gong room overlooking the lake front.

He looked about the room. It had charm and individuality. The name of Edith's interior decorator was given to two continents.

Slim picked a copy of Turf and read Gossip from a full page picture of Mrs. Ashleigh standing with Comanche after a recent winning race at Saratoga captioned, "Lovely Edith Wins Again," when he was aware of a faint rustle of silk in the room.

He was almost startled by the striking figure of Edith in a low-cut pale green moire cocktail gown which seemed to contrast perfectly with her slightly olive, outdoor skin. At the crack he had thought her beautiful but weary so. Now she seemed to glow with a dark rich glisten that had made her the darling of photographers on two continents.

"Oh!" she exclaimed with a softness that none the less failed to hide her astonishment as Slim rose to greet her.

Edith had expected a cruder type. Most of the trainers she had known were of the rough and ready sort.

"You're Mr. Maynard, of course," was Edith's salutation, "the man Mr. Biddle spoke of so glowingly."

"Yes, I'm Maynard. I have just been admiring your apartment."

Edith laughed softly. With the feeling he would be more sure of his ground if he diverted the topic to one in which he new both had a kindred interest, Slim nodded to a large painting, saying:

"That's a fine likeness of Comanche."

"He's a darling, Comanche," enthused Edith. "I just think there's no other horse quite like him. But, Mr. Maynard, I've always maintained that it takes champagne to put one into the proper mood to appraise Comanche. Wouldn't you like a cocktail?"

A good belt of hard Kentucky whisky, straight, would have been more to Slim's liking, but he managed to say:

"I'd be delighted" in a way that didn't sound a bit foppish or "drawing roomy."

Two champagne cocktails, Roxanne, Edith told the maid.

The champagne put Slim definitely at ease. Remembering that Matt Biddle's suggestion that the most effective way to flatter Edith was to praise her horse, Slim started:

"Another cocktail?" she said, indicating the champagne bottle in its silver bucket.

"I haven't had a bite since noon. How about it, Flo?"

"Why didn't you go ahead without me?" Slim asked.

"Ah, there's a reason," Snapper replied as he signaled a waiter.

Recalling the lone twenty dollar note in his pocket, all that stood between him and the first of the month, and wondering how far it would stretch in a resort like the Lake Shore, Slim paled a trifle when he found the cheapest item listed was a chicken sandwich at $3.50.

Flo lapsed into a contented state that was almost dreamlike... How far removed seemed yesterday's world, populated with Snapper and Flo, and a wolf that camped eternally at Slim's door—when he had been to see Man of War, Equipoise, Discovery, War Admiral, Seabiscuit, Coronado and Comanche all in the same race," Slim said. "Comanche would win—if he could catch Coronado."

"Coronado?" Edith asked. "Wasn't he one of those California horses I have one of his offspring, Knight Errant, working out with Comanche?" Slim, working out with Comanche, stopped his roadster near the concealed entrance of an elegant apartment house on Sheridan road.

"Don't you think Comanche has improved his early speed since I engaged Knight Errant to work with him?" Edith replied, smiling only of her equine darling and still pleased with the dicker she had made with Charlie Bassett for Knight Errant's services.

"Possibly it has helped Comanche," he said earnestly. "But at the expense of ruining a potentially great race horse," he added with emphasis.

"Properly handled," Slim continued without mention of Bassett. "Knight Errant would have been truly a great stake horse up to the time he was permitted to race his heart out, pacing Comanche. But there's still a chance, Mrs. Ashleigh," he added fervently, "is—"

"Isn't Knight Errant owned by a girl, Mr. Maynard?" Edith interposed.

"Yes, a girl out in California—" "Oh," Edith said guardedly. Her thin but beautiful mouth had curved in a smile over the wide champagne glass.

And Slim, in his eagerness to impress Edith with the injustice being done Knight Errant felt that the colt's cause was now hurt by this discerning observation on the part of the Ashleigh woman.

"A girl out in California whose faith in a horse is so sublime that it's ridiculously beautiful," he blurted, sensing in the next breath that perhaps he had put his foot into it all the deeper. But Slim decided to press his plea.

"Knight Errant's racing record may look shabby because of that horse?"

Slim arrived at the Lake Shore Night Club more than an hour late. Flo was waiting eagerly, Snapper hungrily.

"Did you get the job, Slim?" Flo asked impatiently.

"Yeah," Slim drawled resignedly.

"Flo beamed. "Boy," she said, "back on a steady income—at last!"

"At how many potatoes per?"

Snapper who thought of everything in terms of currency, asked.

"What if I told you we didn't come to any understanding about that?" Slim asked.

"You mean to tell me you've been up in that daffy Ashleigh woman's apartment for two hours and didn't even get around to terms. What was she doing, showing you her etchings?" queried Snapper.

"You'd be surprised!" Slim replied.

"Jeet jet?" Snapper asked hungrily.

"No, few! Slim came back, whimsically challenging Snapper's hunch.

Not a quiver in a Hoodful

LIFT the bonnet of a 1940 Buick and you'll see a hoodful of power plant whose very dimensions reveal the vast reserve of energy it puts at your command.

But just start this over-size giant—stir this sleeping brute into action, and you find that only the blur of the fan blades betrays its readiness to get up and go!

For you're looking at an engine balanced within limits eight to sixteen times closer than ordinary practice permits.

So precise is Buick's exclusive method of micropoise-balancing after assembly that a misplaced dime's weight on the flywheel rim is enough to reject any engine until that condition has been corrected.

On that score alone this hundred-plus-horsepower straight-eight qualifies as the world's one-and-only of its kind. But in addition to that it's a valve-in-head engine, 10% more efficient, size for size—and it's a Dynaflash valve-in-head, which means it gets more good out of every drop of gas!

The car this great eight powers as plenty to lay claim to your attention—smart new styling, BuiCoil Spring's "full float" comfort, "finger flick" Handi-shift transmission, seats in some models that are next thing to five feet wide.

But even if you overlook them and all the rest of its 72 new features—your best buy's still Buick on its power plant alone.

There's not a quiver in a hoodful of ready-to-ramble energy—and nobody will be more pleased to prove it than your nearest Buick dealer!

*Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

"Best buy's Buick!"

"You have Coronado's only son running as a workhorse for Comanche," Slim corrected pointedly.

Edith made no answer. Her dusky, almost somber glance was sweeping Slim. When she spoke suddenly, she smiled.

"Perhaps we can make other arrangements...."

"For Knight Errant? Gosh, Mrs. Ashleigh, you're swell!"

"Won't you please call me Edith?" she asked. "Formality irks me. Besides, the Mrs. is only a legal affliction, or rather, the aftermath of one."

Edith liked her way of talking. "Smooth," he called it.

This woman, he told himself, was not only easy to look at, but amusing and worldly and clever.

Her glance burned his with a direct flame. She moved a slim hand that flashed an emerald — the world's third largest, it was rumored — toward the low white table between their feet.

Jean Parker

Mrs. George MacDonald, known to film fans as Jean Parker, and her newspaperman husband tried separation for six months and liked it so well, it is reported, that they decided to make it permanent, with possibility of divorce in the offing.

MONTEREY, Cal.—A new type of aerial sleeve target for anti-aircraft firing practice is being developed by officers at the Presidio of Monterey. Chief advantage the proposed target has over those now fired by army gun crews is rubber compartments containing tetrachloride which enable gunners to record direct hits immediately. When struck, the new target emits a dense column of smoke.

Lyle Smith might very easily be termed the "one-man" band. He uses the clarinet, saxophone-accordion-vibraphone and piano equally well. For the more worldly-wise he has a stock of sophisticated songs to offer nightly.

Sees Kelly Tire As "Insurance Policy"

Lee Butler of Butler's Service Center on W. State st., says:

"We get a man to thinking about his tires as a kind of insurance policy against accidents. Protection for his wife and kids. Then we show him the Kelly line. Tell him about the tougher Armorubber tread. We show him how much safer and stronger the new low-stretch cord is, and how swanky Kelly dress up his car.

"After that, there's nothing to it except to tell him our low price and how simple and convenient it is to pay on our budget plan.

"By that time he's a Kelly customer for keeps."

FAITH SEEN AS BUSINESS BASIS

PLAN CONCERT AT COLUMBIANA

Objective Is to Think of Every Customer As Friend

Students Will Present First of Season Wednesday Night

"Doing little extras helps to build our business," says L. S. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners, whose plant is on the Benton rd.

"Faith is the basis of business," comments Mr. Price. "If we soured on the way others break faith with us, it would do our business no good. We know human nature is weak. But most of our friends are people we admire and our biggest job is to think of every customer, however complaining or critical, as our friend."

"Too many people are too ready to think others would deceive or treat them unfairly if given a chance. This makes them careless of their service or indifferent about their attention to those whose patronage they enjoy."

"We believe that by giving the customer the utmost for his dollar we will be doing a vital good for the industry and ourselves."

"We believe that good dry cleaning and the intent to become better and better in our field will make us deserving of that faith and confidence which most people of Salem have."

GREAT CORNELL TEAM RANKS AS EASTERN CHAMP

Missouri Hailed As Big Six Leader; Ohio Wins Big Ten Crown

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Cornell, Missouri, Ohio State and Texas A. & M. sported new football crowns today, while Southern California, still shy the headpiece, wore all the other trappings of royalty.

The Trojans still have to win two more games before officially becoming Pacific coast conference champions. But no one expects them to lose after seeing that 20-12 rout of Notre Dame Saturday.

With the season about ended, Southern California is figured for the Rose Bowl assignment next January, and the line is forming for teams that would like to be there, too, or at least break into some sort of pre-season game. Principal candidates now are Tennessee and the Texas Aggies, standouts in the small undefeated-and-united brigade, with Tennessee the first choice, if it can get past Kentucky and Auburn.

Eastern Leader

Cornell walked off with the east's awards by whipping Pennsylvania, 26-0. That eighth straight triumph gave the Big Red team first place in the "Ivy league" and the entire eastern sector. Duquesne, also unbeaten and untied, may dispute the second title, if it does as well against Detroit Saturday as it did in licking Carnegie Tech, 22-7, for the Pittsburgh city title.

Missouri's Tigers walked away with Big Six laurels, and Ohio State backed into its first Big Ten title since 1920. Missouri clinched the championship with a 20-0 win over Kansas. Ohio's Buckeyes lost 21-14, to Michigan in their climax game, but finished on top when Northwestern tied Iowa, 7-7.

Southern Methodist's unexpected 21-0 triumph over Baylor eliminated the Bears as a last threat to the Aggies' Southwest conference supremacy.

The Southern conference race also reached the windup stage, with Duke shading Clemson in claiming the unofficial title.

Along with these champions, the season's honor roll includes Colorado Mines and San Jose (Cal.) State in the unbeaten-and-untied group; Tulane, Georgetown, Rutgers and U. G. L. A. in the tied-but-undefeated division, and Boston college, Holy Cross, North Carolina, Kentucky, Nebraska, Utah, Oregon State and Santa Clara, each defeated once.

What's left looks like this: East—Army-Navy is the game of the week, despite Navy's 28-0 licking by Princeton. Nevertheless, Boston college and Holy Cross probably will play a lot more football in their Saturday meeting. B. C. tuned up Saturday by whipping Kansas State, 33-7.

Other Games
Other windup games include Fordham-New York U., Stanford-Dartmouth, at New York, and George Washington-West Virginia. Of these, only George Washington played Saturday, beating Bucknell, 7-6.

Yale redeemed a dismal season by trouncing Harvard, 20-7. Penn State handed Pitt a final 10-0 licking; Colgate and Columbia played a scoreless tie, and LaFayette beat Lehigh 29-13.

Midwest: Purdue won the old oaken bucket; and third place in the Big Ten by nosing out Indiana, 7-6. Minnesota walloped Wisconsin, 23-6, and left the Badgers sharing the cellar with Chicago, 46-0 victim of Illinois.

Nebraska captured second place in the Big Six by downing Oklahoma, 13-7.

Oklahoma Aggies moved into a tie with the Missouri university for the Missouri Valley conference lead by beating Creighton, 20-9, and Tulsa took third with a 14-6 win over Drake.

Southwest: Although the Southwest conference race is settled, Texas university's sophomores have a great chance to cover themselves with glory when they meet the Texas Aggies Thursday. They are tied for second now with Baylor, which meets Rice Saturday. Texas Christian, which beat Rice, 21-0, for its first conference win, plays S. M. U. Independent Texas Tech, 13-0 winner over Montana, plays Loyola of the South Thursday.

Pacific coast: Southern California returns to the conference ranks against Washington, 20-13 winner over Oregon Thursday. Meanwhile U. C. L. A. still unbeaten in the circuit although tied 13-13 by Oregon State plays Washington State on the second Thanksgiving. The two leaders clash Dec. 9. Unbeaten Little San Jose State winds up its 13-game season Thursday against Drake.

Must Beat Kentucky

South Tennessee, No. 1 Rose Bowl candidate, has to hurdle the Kentucky "jinx" at Lexington, Ky., Thursday and defeat Auburn Dec. 9 to finish a perfect season. The Vols, idle last week, saw Georgia Tech move into the Southeastern conference lead by beating Florida, 21-7. Tulane, 52-0 winner over Sewanee, moved up even with Tennessee. All three are unbeaten in the circuit. Tech faces Georgia and Tulane faces Louisiana State Saturday.

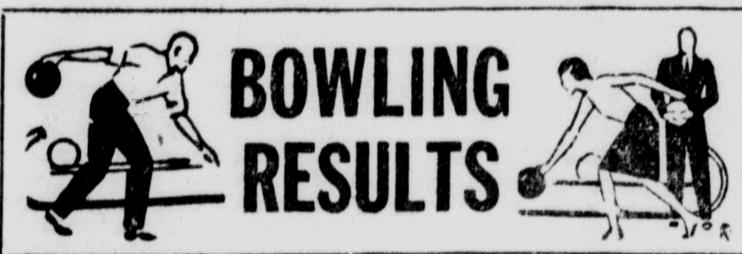

Auburn, 7-0 winner over Georgia, plays Florida Thursday, while Alabama faces Vanderbilt in another windup game.

Rocky Mountain Big Seven: Thursday's Colorado-Denver game may decide a muddled title race,

Landsdell Scores Against Notre Dame

Granny Landsdell, of Southern California, carries the ball over the line for the second Trojan score against Notre Dame in the thriller at South Bend, Ind. Notre Dame made two touchdowns, but they weren't enough; Southern Cal ending up on the long end of a 20 to 12 score.
